Cabinet Secretary Karló Alexis Nagrales urged the people to vote for pro-Federalism candidates in the mid-term elections in May this year since the forthcoming polls is crucial for the cause of federalism. Nagrales made his statement during his speech at the National Federation Summit organized by the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) recently. He also called on the Inter-Agency Task Force on Federalism and Constitutional Reform (IATF-FCR) to continue the advocacy campaign for federalism and to finish harmonizing the Bayanhan Federalism charter created by the Consultative Committee chaired by Chief Justice Reynato Sison. Nagrales said that he will not support federalism but will go on record and will now lay out his saying that

Max's requested support from PCAARRD for quality sweet potato produce

By Estrella Z. Galardo

Max's chain of restaurants requested support from the Philippine Council for Agriculture, Aquatic and Natural Resources Research and Development of the Department of Science and Technology (DOST-PCAARRD) to maintain supply of sweetpotato for its restaurant offering, "spring chicken with sweetpotato fries".

Specifically, the restaurant chain requested support to develop the supply chain of appropriate nutrient-rich sweetpotato variety that can produce quality fries.

Through the project, "Support Systems for Sweetpotato (SP) Value Chain Development and Establish SP Value Chains in Leyte-Samar", PCAARRD provided assistance to Max's.

The project is under the PCAARRD-funded Sweetpotato Industry Strategic S&T Program (SP-ISP), implemented by the Visayas State University-Philippine Rootcrops Research and Training Center (VSU-PhilRoot-

A three hectares of PSB SP 17, a recommended high-yielding variety for fries because of its quality and shelf life, has been established in Antipolo. The nursery will supply a 20-hectare production area, with production scheduling to sustainably meet Max's volume requirements.

Early 2019 is the expansion period, with about 60-hectare identified areas in Antipolo and Bulacan. Max's also needed sweetpotato powder for various culinary uses, since it can be made into quality products by their innovative chefs. VSU recommended the Super Bureau variety or VSP 6, which will soon be produced from quality planting materials in Tarlac.

The development of the sweetpotato supply chain is now in full swing to meet the demand. This partnership with Max's can also mean access to the company's corporate social responsibility (CSR) program that can benefit farmers both in production and processing.

With health and well-being as core values of the Max's food chain, sweetpotato is being produced using aloe vera cum seaweed-based soil enhancer and biopesticide. VSU's initial output with minimal solution application yielded 35 tons/ha, which surpassed the target yield of the SP-ISP.

With Max's and PCAARRD's partnership, sweetpotato is emerging as an important component of the health food industry in the country using the outputs of S&T, including varieties, production techniques, and product applications that DOST-PCAARRD has long supported in its R&D with a strong belief in the potential of the crop.

There are other players in the food industry that are fast recognizing the potential of sweetpotato, who are requesting information and assistance from the R&D community. The coming years will experience a big leap in technology transfer following the value chain modality with the strong collaboration between the S&T community and industry.
