A total of 863 Filipino seafarers from Miami, Florida, arrived this morning at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport after a brief lull in repatriation the last three days.

The seafarers came aboard two Boeing-747 Wamos flights chartered by Norwegian Cruise Lines Holdings, Miami, a month after the first Wamos repatriation flight from San Francisco, California.

"This morning's arrivals push the number of our repatriated seafarers above the 12,600 mark and we expect more arrivals in the coming days," said Foreign Affairs Undersecretary for Migrant Workers' Affairs Sarah Lou Y. Arriola. Five more flights are arriving from the US in the next two days.

In addition to the land-based workers. In total, some 15,801 workers have been assisted by the Department since the COVID-19 pandemic began.

Today's flights were facilitated by the Office of Migrant Workers' Affairs in coordination with the Philippine Embassy in Washington DC and other government agencies who are part of the whole-of-government approach to repatriation.

The local manning agency CFSharp was also actively involved in the process.

The repatriates shall undergo a mandatory 14-day facility-based quarantine. Appropriate airport medical protocols and checks were also conducted by the DOH-BOQ.

COVID-19 TREATMENT PROTOCOLS EXPLAINED BY DOH

The Department of Health (DOH) yesterday explained the protocols on treating COVID-19 patients, including off-label medicines allowed to be administered to them, and how healthcare workers monitor their situation while admitted in a COVID-19 health facility.

In its Thursday episode of Beat COVID-19 Virtual Presser, Dr. Beverly Lorraine Ho, OIC-Director IV for Health Promotion and Communication Service was joined by Dr. Marissa Alejandria, President of the Philippine Society of Microbiology & Infectious Diseases and Professor at the University of the Philippines General Hospital, Department of Clinical Epidemiology, National Institutes of Health, and Dr. Deonne Gauiran, a hematologist at the Philippine General Hospital (PGH).

Dr. Alejandria explained that the patient needs to undergo examinations such as x-ray or CT scan and blood test for monitoring purposes, prior to admission.

“Tungkol naman sa gamot na ibibigay sa kanila, tama ang sabi ni Usec Vergeire, wala pa talaga tayong ‘magic drug’ or epektibong gamot na napag-aralan o na-establish sa mga clinical trial na epektibo at safe gamitin para sa COVID-19,” said Dr. Alejandria as she reminded the public not to try medicines without Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval to avoid side effects.

Dr. Alejandrino explained that the current treatment protocol for COVID-19 patients is only supportive due to the absence of FDA-approved medicines that are effective against the virus.

“Binabantayan po natin ang pasyente, binibigyan ng paracetamol, hydration, mino-monitor sa ward, tapos kung mas nahihirapang huminga, ililipat natin sa ICU; pwede po syang mailagay sa ventilator para masuportahan yung function ng baga, so, yun ang standard of care,” she elaborated.

Dr. Gauiran on the other hand shared his knowledge on convalescent plasma therapy which the PGH is currently performing under the guidance and in accordance with the strict protocols issued by the FDA.

“Ang convalescent plasma therapy ay isang uri ng paggagamot kung saan ang plasma o likidong parte ng dugo ng isang taong gumaling na sa impeksyon ay isinasalin or itina-transfuse sa isang pasyente,” shared Dr. Gauiran.

However, Dr. Gauiran emphasized that although the therapy was already proven safe and effective against SARS, MERS-CoV, H1N1 and Ebola, there is no evidence yet to show that it is effective against SARS-Cov2.

“Gusto rin nam- Dr. Gauiran explained.

Meanwhile, Dr. Ho stressed that patients experiencing mild symptoms of COVID-19 like fever, cough or sore throat should not take antibiotics without the advice of a health professional.
