Department of Health Sec. Duque inspects hospitals in Manila

The Health Secretary Francisco T. Duque III headed to two health facilities yesterday morning, unannounced to check on the situation of its health-care workers and ensure that they have enough resources amid the increasing number of COVID-19 cases in the country.

The Health Chief visited Jose R. Reyes Memorial Medical Center which recently reported 98.1% occupancy rate with 51 out of its 52 COVID dedicated beds occupied as of July 9, 2020.

Secretary Duque also visited Tondo Medical Center, which reported an occupancy rate of 62.4% for its 101 COVID dedicated beds.

“While statistics and data drive our COVID-19 response, iba pa rin if you see the situation first hand. We rely on data and statistics in making decisions, but they are based on real-life situations that cannot be sufficiently captured by numbers.

Kailangan pa rin natin makita ang kalagayan ng ating mga pasyente at pasilidad,” explained Secretary Duque on why he opted to see first-hand how DOH directives translate to patient care.

In his visit, Secretary Duque thanked the doctors, nurses, medical technologists, other healthcare workers, and hospital staff for tirelessly providing medical care and support for COVID-19 patients.

“I visited these hospitals to check on the patients and our healthcare workers on how they are holding up. Gusto natin silang kumustahin at alamin kung ano ang kanilang mga pangangailangan.

Nais din nating personal na pasalamatan ang ating magiging na frontliners na walang pagod na humaharap sa hamon ng COVID-19 araw-araw.

We will be conducting more hospital visits in the coming days,” the Health Chief concluded.

MONITORING TO CONTROL SPREAD OF COVID-19 CONTINUES IN CAVITE’S TOP TOURIST DESTINATION

In order to ensure that health safety protocols are strictly implemented in one of the all-time favorite tourist destinations in Luzon, the monitoring team comprised of representatives from DTI, DOLE, PHO, PTCAO and the City Tourism Office visited food establishments and few operating hair salons at Ayala Mall Serin in Tagaytay City on July 15, 2020.

General Manager Jacky Chen commends the government’s efforts in helping businesses adjust with the new normal guidelines, as the team did not just focus on spotting violations but were helpful enough to give recommendations on how they can improve their existing safety measures.

Suggestions such as setting up of additional handwashing areas, provision of separate bins for infectious wastes, and techniques on limiting the allowable walk-ins are among the few discussed during the post-audit monitoring.

The team will be roving in two more shopping malls in Tagaytay City, Fora Mall on July 16 and Summit Ridge Promenade on July 17. — (PTCAO)

DOST e-learning for highschool teachers will aid to prevent mis-information

190 Countless hours have been spent by our premier scientists, engineers, and medical experts just to protect us from the possible harm caused by Coronavirus Disease or COVID-19. Several innovative science and technology (S&T) solutions have been initiated and developed that would give the public a better chance to win against this pandemic.

However, we are also confronted by another enemy, the widespread disinformation and misinformation about this pandemic, causing people to be anxious, to panic, and to make wrong decisions that affect their lives negatively.

To address this issue, the Department of Science and Technology-Science and Technology Information Institute (DOST-STII) took the pandemic as an opportunity to reach out to those staying at home to be properly informed of the health emergency and what

(From page 1) The DOST and its agencies are doing to find solutions to COVID-19. The DOST-STII, recognizing the significance of getting science-based information from reliable sources about COVID-19, conducted an e-learning session with high school teachers from Central Luzon in partnership with the DOST Region III on 03 July 2020 via a Facebook Closed Group.

With the theme #ScienceJournoAko: Popularizing Science Stories in a Changing Environment, the webinar focused on the importance of crafting accurate and easy to understand science-related stories in countering "fake news" and promoting science, technology, and innovation to a wider audience. More than 500 high school teachers from different schools in the provinces in Central Luzon attended the webinar.

Timothy James M. Dimacali, a Fulbright scholar from Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and founding editor of the SciTech section of GMA News Online, shared various techniques and his extensive knowledge on how to create news and feature stories out of scientific researches, papers, and journals that can be transformed into easy-to-read stories suitable for newspapers, magazines, online news sites, and social media.

In his message, DOST-STII Director Richard P. Burgos stressed that communicating science in a manner that is easy to understand is important and knowing the facts and figures behind the science is not enough to effectively engage the public to appreciate and use science, technology, and innovation.

"I strongly believe that it is equally important for us who are engaged in

Meanwhile, Dimacali also pointed out in his presentation that scientific analogies are valuable tools to help readers understand complex ideas.

"Though I would like to remind everyone that because of their simple nature, analogies are not perfect, there will always be some details that are omitted for sake of simplicity.

For the analogy to work, it has to convey the main idea," said Dimacali.

This is the third of a series of webinars on science communication organized by th DOST-STII to enhance the skills of aspiring science communicators and journalists in creating compelling science-related content.

The first two focused on the importance of science blogging in the time of pandemic and harnessing the power of social media platforms like Twitter and Instagram to create S&T stories.

DILG: 22k PDLs released by BJMP in decongestion program

In a move to decongest overcrowded jails amid the COVID-19 pandemic, the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) said a total of 21,858 persons have now been released from March 17 to July 13 in the 470 jail facilities managed by the Bureau of Jail Management and Penology (BJMP) nationwide.

DILG Secretary Eduardo M. Año said that of the 21,858 PDLs released, 15,102 were para-legal releases through bail, plea-bargaining, parole, or probation. At the same time, 6,756 were non-para-legal releases through acquittal or served sentence.

Other BJMP facilities with reported cases were elderly, 621 were sick, and 24 were pregnant. “Patunay lamang ito na sa gitna ng pandemya, hindi nakakaligtan ng pamahalaan ang kapaanan at kabutihan ng ating mga kapatid na nakapiit sa mga kulungan, lalong-lalo na iyong mga matatanda, mahihina at buntis. Nag-papasalamat din kami sa Supreme Court sa kanilang mga bagong guidelines na nakatulong sa maraming PDLs,” he said. “The DILG through the BJMP is also taking concrete measures to decongest our jails such as improving and putting up more jail facilities and fast-tracking the court hearings of PDLs,” he said. Meanwhile, the DILG Chief said that the BJMP is conducting targeted testing in 51 jail facilities and three BJMP offices that have been compromised by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Año said that of the jail units, Region VII had the highest number of positive cases at 731; followed by CALABARZON at 146; and National Capital Region at 139.

Other BJMP facilities with reported cases are Region IX with 84; Region III with 13; MIMAROPA and Region VI with four cases each; Cordillera Administrative Region and Region XI with one case each.

As of July 15, 2020, there are only 180 active COVID-19 cases in the BJMP, 126 of whom are PDLs, and 54 are BJMP personnel. Eight hundred ninety-five PDLs and jail

DENR reached 80% of this year seedling production target despite COVID-19

Notwithstanding DENR is “on track” with COVID-19, the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) was able to raise 36 million seedlings for the Enhanced National Greening Program (ENGP) during the first half of 2020.

The number already represents almost 80 percent of the 45.2 million seedlings targeted for the entire year under the government’s flagship reforestation program, DENR Secretary Roy A. Cimatu said, citing a report from the Forest Management Bureau (FMB).

“This speaks well of how the DENR and its partners have carried out the ENGP in the face of challenges and constraints created by the pandemic,” Cimatu said.

With this development, Cimatu said, the its ENGP seedling production “just in time for planting this rainy season.” In its report, the FMB said the seedling production covers both plantation species and indigenous species used for rehabilitation of denuded areas in watershed, mangrove and protected areas. It also includes commodity species used for the establishment of agroforestry plantations.

As of July 9, indigenous and plantation seedlings had reached 20 million; bamboo, 3.4 million; agroforestry, 2.98 million; fruit trees, 1.2 million; fuelwood, 796,600; rubber, 131,775; nipa, 65,000; and ilang-ilang, 50,000.

Aside from bamboo, other commodity seedling species raised during the period include
