DOH survivor series features mother of 4 during pandemic

A working mother of four shared how she and her family rose above the pandemic amid discrimination in the September 20 episode of the Department of Health's (DOH) Survivors Series. The prejudice that she experienced from fearful neighbors did not stop COVID-19 survivor Jade de Leon-Tumampil, 35, from giving back to her community.

After she recovered from the disease, she volunteered in her barangay's pandemic response by helping them prepare materials for information dissemination.

Secretary Maria Rosario Singh-Vergeire also supported Tumampil's volunteerism in helping the community through sharing correct information, which the undersecretary DOH Undersec-portant. "Sa pagiging kritikal natin sa mga naririnig, nababasa, at pinalalaganap na balita, makatutulong tayong lahat na magiging parte ng solusyon sa problemang kinakaharap natin ang ta-mang impormasyon," she explained. Tumampil regularly creates and does online posts of infographics and social media cards, detailing important facts about COVID-19 and how people can protect themselves and their loved ones. "Kung ako equipped sa information, bakit hindi ko i-share. Wala namang mawawala sa akin," said Tumampil. "Sa ganun ko lang din mae-express kay Lord yung second life ko."

Tumampil specifically advocates crushing discrimination against COVID-19 patients, frontliners, and healthcare workers.

When she tested positive, some of her neighbors became critical about her condition to the point of depriving her family their needed essentials. "Pinakanakalungkot is yung pagharang nung supplies ng food na para sa'min," Tumampil recalled one of the more painful moments. "Halos ayaw papasukin yung nanay ko at mga kapatid ko para magdala ng supplies. Even yung mga tindera kinakausap nila na wag kaming pagbentahan."

Tumampil, however, noted that what she and her family experienced is a mild case of discrimination compared to other COVID-19 positive members in her community. "May iba napipilitan lumabas kasi wala silang tulad ng parents ko na tumutulong sa kanila. Tapos sinasabihan sila na mamatay na sila para daw di na kumalat yung virus. May isa naman sa ospital pa na discriminate. Kada bababa daw siya for his labs, sisigaw daw yung guard: 'Ayan na yung positive!'"

These incidents led Tumampil to assist her barangay in information dissemination, and to enlighten some members of the community. This way, she hopes to prevent wrong notions about COVID-19 patients, healthcare workers, and frontliners from spreading.

Tumampil shared in the Survivors Series how her family managed when she opted to do self-quarantine at home following her positive diagnosis. First, the Tumampil family experienced is

While she confined herself to one room for two weeks straight, her husband slept in the living room, while their children protected themselves by staying in another bedroom. Her family's example gave Tumampil great comfort and strength

"Kung kaya ng family ko na gawin itong extraordinary efforts na ito, sino ako para sumuko," Tumampil recalled.

A DOH staff also visited her and her family to check if their household did meet the right conditions.

Manila beach nourishment project earns praise from Sec. Cimatu

In more than a decade since the writ was issued, it was only under the Duterte administration that the government finally set in motion an white sand beach.

"We are saddened by the overcrowding of people along Manila Bay, without observance of physical distancing. But somehow, we felt vindicated from the accusations and negative claims that the Manila Bay rehabilitation is artificial and harmful to human health and the environment," Cimatu said.

honest-to-goodness undertaking to bring Manila Bay back to its former glory.

Cimatu shared all the praise and recognition the DENR has been getting because of the beach nourishment project to the other mandamus agencies.

"Di pa tapos ang rehabilitasyon ng Manila Bay, ngunit ngayon pang nagpapasalamat na ako sa lahat ng hiras at tu long na binibigay ng mga mandamus agencies, kung wala ang tulong ninyo, wala kaming magagawa sa DENR," Cimatu stressed.

He specifically acknowledged the contributions of the Department of Public Works and Highways, the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority, the Philippine Coast Guard, the Department of the Interior and Local Government, the Laguna Lake Development Authority, the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the Philippine National Police, and the Philippine Maritime Group.

The mandamus agencies did not only vitally contributed in all rehabilitation works in Manila Bay, they also stood by the DENR in its most trying moments when the agency was severely criticized by some critics.

It can be recalled during the International Coastal Cleanup Day celebration on Sept. 19, almost all members of the Duterte Cabinet were there to give their statement of support to the DENR.

Manila Bay is only in its second phase of rehabilitation. The third phase, according to Cimatu, is the hardest—changing the attitude and behavior of the people towards the environment. This phase, if becomes successful, would sustain all the efforts that have been done to bring Manila Bay back to its former pristine condition.

Manila beach nourishment project earns praise from Sec. Cimatu

Environment Secretary Roy A. Cimatu said Tuesday he felt “elated and overwhelmed” by the praise and support the Manila Bay beach nourishment project has received from President Rodrigo Roa Duterte and the general public. “It is very encouraging and fulfilling to get positive feedbacks from the public, much more to receive a commendation from the President. For us, it is an affirmation that we did the right decision to pursue the beach nourishment project,” Cimatu said. He also thanked the President for recognizing the efforts of the Manila Bay Task Force led by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) to clean up the Baywalk area, particularly the paving of artificial white sand on the beach. The DENR chief strongly believes that supportive views outnumbered criticisms over the beach nourishment project, which is an important component of the Manila Bay rehabilitation program. “We, in the DENR and Manila Bay Task Force believe in the principle of vox populi vox dei, which says the voice of the people is the voice of God,” Cimatu said. “The majority of the people have spoken, and they are supportive of the project,” he added. According to Cimatu, seeing throngs of people at Manila Bay last weekend to get a glimpse of the white sand beach was a strong indication that the project enjoys overwhelming public support.
