items using single-use plastics, which include placing cooking oil, condiments such as vinegar and soy sauce, in plastic “tingi” or retail purchases. He recommended the use of old newspapers and magazines for wrapping dried fish instead of using plastics. “I suggest that when the public buys from your stores, ask or encourage them to bring reusable bags and containers,” Sampulna said. “This Earth Day 2022, I urge both businesses and individuals to rethink the customary ways on how to sell and consume products. Let us all take sustainable actions to heal the planet Earth,” he pointed out. Earth Day, celebrated annually on April 22, is a global movement where over 190 countries take part through the promotion of sustainable environmental actions and behavioral change. This year, the DENR celebrated Earth Day highlighted by the recognition of four DENR environmental heroes or workers of the department who have dedicated their lives protecting the environment. Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) Acting Secretary Jim O. Sampulna urged businesses to step up efforts in switching to sustainable actions to combat the effects of climate change and environmental destruction in celebration of the Earth Day on April 22. With this year’s theme “#InvestInOurPlanet,” Sampulna encouraged manufacturing companies, food businesses, and market vendors to join efforts to minimize the use of non-biodegradable and single-use plastics for packaging, which are the major contributor to the country’s residual and solid waste. Sampulna emphasized that small actions, such as recycling and re-using materials, are helpful, however industries should also take part as they are also producers of plastic waste.

“Using small plastic packaging like sachets and plastic bottles is still rampant in our country today. I am urging all manufacturing firms to come up with their own recovery project where they will retrieve and buy back these plastic wastes from their consumers for cash or even food items like rice and groceries,” said Sampulna.

Likewise, the DENR chief called on food companies to switch to food packaging that is reusable or biodegradable, as these wastes, when not properly disposed of, end up in creeks, rivers, and oceans.

“I am appealing to our restaurants and food businesses not to use plastic utensils, styrofoam materials and single-use plastic containers. Instead, use eco-friendly or reusable food packages,” Sampulna said. Sampulna also encouraged market vendors and small store owners to change their customary ways of packaging retail

DepEd looks forward to physical work immersion for SHS students

The Department of Education (DepEd) supported the reintroduction of physical work immersion in the ongoing progressive expansion of face to face classes to strengthen active school participation and planning for various service delivery conditions.

In Senior High School (SHS), the implementation of physical Work Immersion, which is a required subject for the Technical-Vocational-Livelihood (TVL) track, was suspended during the COVID-19 situation.

“We are strongly suggesting that Work Immersion should be implemented for the Senior High School learners as they are nearest to accomplishing their postsecondary goals and dreams,” Secretary Leonor Magtolis Briones said.

During the regional EduAksyon Press Conference hosted by DepEd MIMAROPA, Undersecretary for Curriculum and Instruction Diosdado San Antonio also stressed that the Department has created guidelines on Work Immersion prior to the COVID-19 pandemic.

“Puwede naman po kasi gawin ang immersion kahit hindi pa pinayagan ang limited face to face classes noon, pero ngayong may face to face classes na, siyempre ibabalik natin face to face immersion.

Maaring magkaroon ang mga mag-aaral sa Senior High School hinggil sa kanilang specializations na napili,” Undersecretary San Antonio explained.

President Duterte says Asia-Pacific must be bolder in facing water-related challenges

President Rodrigo Duterte said Saturday his video message during the Heads of States and Government Meeting at the 4th Asia-Pacific Water Summit here in Kumamoto City.

“Excellencies, now is the time for bolder vision and urgent action. We need to decide wisely for ourselves and for future generations,” President

Duterte said Saturday in his video message during the Heads of States and Government Meeting at the 4th Asia-Pacific Water Summit here in Kumamoto City.

Water, being a resource so vital for humans and ecosystems for survival and sustenance, access to it and its related services is rightly considered a basic human right, he said.

The Filipino leader cited the Philippines as a lesson in caution and example for the need for urgent action, stressing that despite to the abundance of water in his country, there remains an enormous challenge to ensure people’s universal access to safe, affordable and accessible water. “This requires an urgent sense of community action in the region, an integrated and coherent policy and the resolve to create opportunities for Life Tip: Learn to be unaffected by the words of others

Most people get very upset when they are called negative names by others, but there is a simple trick to overcoming this. Here it is: If I were up to you and called you a fire hydrant, would you be upset?

Of course not. Obviously you are not a fire hydrant, you are a human being.

The same concept applies to when someone calls you something that you know you are not.

They are foolish for saying such things, so why would you react with such anger?

The only exception is when someone calls you something that is true!
In this case, you should thank them for alerting you to a weakness, one that you can now work on changing. Source: highexistence.com
